

Rewarding Excellence

- It is expected that many more children will receive a reward for ending the day in the silver or gold zones.
- At the end of each day, each class will have a small celebration where children in the silver zone will be recognised, and children in the gold zone will receive a Gold Award sticker.
- When a child has received 10 Gold Award stickers, they will be presented with a special Gold Certificate in the weekly celebration assembly on Friday. In addition to this, one child per class will be chosen to receive a certificate for following our School Code of Conduct.
- A Well Done postcard will also be sent home before a child receives their 10 Gold Award stickers Certificate, so that a parent may attend Celebration assembly if they wish

Please support your child by encouraging them to learn and respect the Federation Code of Conduct to promote a positive learning environment:

- 🚩 We will be healthy and safe
- 🚩 We will treat others, objects and places with respect
- 🚩 We have positive learning behaviour and want to do well
- 🚩 We know the difference between right and wrong

A PARENTAL GUIDE TO ZONE BOARDS

Part of the Positive Behaviour Policy for The Dove Federation of Schools

September 2018

The Zone Boards promote positive attitudes to learning and encourage positive learning behaviour. They make classrooms happier and successful Learning Environments. Please find below, all you need to know about our new behaviour system.

Positive Behaviour

- Most behaviour in our school is good to excellent, cooperative and appropriate.
- A Zone Board is an immediate, visual tool to help pupils aim high and understand what is expected of them in school on a daily basis.
- The boards have 5 coloured zones starting with gold at the top, then silver, green, orange and then red at the bottom of the board.
- The largest zone on the board is the green zone. This will have a picture or the name of each child on it at the beginning of every day. Staff are encouraged to regularly praise the children who are staying in green by doing the right thing, and making positive choices.
- The School Code of Conduct and Expectations will be displayed in every room of the school. Children are taught that by following the School Code of Conduct they are rewarded for achievement and behaviour.

How the Zone Board works

- The children will all start the day with their name or photograph in the green zone.
  - Throughout the day any adult may decide that a child has been doing so well that their name or picture is moved to the silver zone, and then the gold zone.
  - If a child fails to keep the School Code of Conduct, an adult will give them one warning, before moving them into the orange zone on the board. The consequence for being in the orange zone will be 5 minutes from their break or lunchtime
  - The child will then be encouraged to make the right choice.
  - When the child chooses to demonstrate appropriate behaviour they will return to the green zone.
- #### Consequences
- Following a move to the orange zone, it is very occasionally that children will still choose to continue to ignore the School Code of Conduct. When this happens, the child's picture/name will go in to the Red Zone.
  - Being in the red zone always leads to a consequence. The children will be told what the consequences are if they go into the red zone. At any stage, if the child decides to cooperate with the Code of Conduct, their name will move back up the board to orange, then green and so on.
  - A pupil who has been in the red zone can only climb as high as the silver zone on the same day.
  - Teachers will inform parents at the end of the day if their child has been in the red zone at all during the day.
  - If pupils are still in the red zone at the end of the day and have not managed to rise out of it, this will be communicated to parents using a consequences postcard
